Resume Profile

I'm an Italian IT professional focused on Artificial Intelligence, pairing hands-on infrastructure and security experience with a solid academic background in machine learning and data analysis. Throughout my degree I deliberately worked in parallel to ground academic theory in real-world practice: working as an IT consultant for several companies, I handled hardware and software infrastructure, cybersecurity, and digital brand management, where I invested heavily in the soft skills I consider as decisive as technical ability. At the University of Turin I built strong foundations in mathematical modelling, data analysis, and information security, culminating in a Bachelor's thesis in which I designed a custom supervised-learning model to detect and analyse business anomalies. I'm now focused on turning that foundation into practical AI systems.
